

Vector.distance is the slowest one of all, it returns the distance between A and B.

Distance based code is the best performance wise because its sole purpose is that it does not take a toll when running.

A-star is the best way to find distance because it gives you the shortest route available.